Marley Fabisiewicz

Founder
SpaceOS

Marley Fabisiewicz is an entrepreneur, technologist, and passionate digital product strategist. He is the Founder of spaceOS, a startup that provides a technology layer for digitally native workspaces.

Marley founded Upnext Technologies, a software and digital product development agency that has been on the forefront of FinTech for over 10 years, designing and engineering successful tailor-made, end-to-end mobile money services in an ever-evolving industry.

Marley has more than 15 years experience in developing and implementing successful digital strategies for technology companies. He's an advisor and strategist for small startups and large global organizations.

Having started out as a music magazine editor and DJ, he founded Lodown Magazine in 1995 and became the European Marketing Manager for Vans Shoes. He later developed and curated the award-winning, Unlike City Guides. These days, Marley is putting his decade's worth of entrepreneurial experience behind an ever-expanding portfolio of digital projects and startups.
