CBRE

Alessandro Mazzanti is CEO of CBRE Italy. He was formerly Head of the Investment team at Insignia in 1999 but became CEO of CBRE Italy after Insignia was acquired by the CBRE Group. In 2008, the Group announced the acquisition of Espansione Commerciale (today known as CBRE S.r.l.), an Italian market leader in providing leasing and property management services for shopping centres, retail and entertainment parks. This acquisition expanded the range of retail services provided by CBRE at international level and enabled the Group to achieve a position of leadership in providing retail services in Italy, which is now considered the fourth largest European market in the sector. Alessandro currently oversees a team of over 600 professionals across Italy (Milan, Rome, Modena and Turin) and since 2010 has been part of the EMEA Board, which coordinates all activities of the Group in the EMEA region. He personally has executed transactions for over 10 billion Euro, providing consultancy services in the real estate sector at international level and acting as advisor to major CBRE sale and purchase transactions involving Italian and international organizations.
